Education & Training Program

GERIATRIC CARE MANAGEMENT... A Growing Industry!!!

The Geriatric Care Management program sponsored by the School of Social Welfare at Stony Brook University is designed to help health care professionals and senior advocates better understand the difficult day-to-day challenges associated with "aging in New York State." Older Americans, the fastest growing segment of the population, must make a wide range of social, health, financial, legal and end-of-life decisions. Most seniors are able to make decisions for themselves, for others this is no longer possible. Either way, the needs of older adults are best served when an inter-disciplinary team works collaboratively for the benefit of the older person.
